

1. Pick any one of your favorite apps and write an optimized HTML `<title>` tag for its homepage that includes the main keyword users would search for.

Answer: I have selected Zomato. The main keyword users are likely to search for is “food delivery”.

```
<title>Zomato - Online Food Delivery & Restaurants</title>
```

Why this is optimized:

- Includes the main keyword “Food Delivery”.
 - Clearly identifies the brand Zomato.
 - It is short enough to generally display well in Google search results.

2. Write a meta description (under 155 characters) for a new playlist page on a music app like Spotify.

Answer:

```
<meta name="description" content="Listen to the best new music playlist on Spotify. Discover trending songs, fresh hits, and your favorite tracks all in one place.">
```

Character count: Approximately 140 characters, so it stays under the recommended 155-character limit.

Why this is optimized:

- Uses relevant keywords such as new music playlist, trending songs, and fresh hits.
 - Includes the brand name Spotify.
 - Has an engaging, click-worthy description.

3. Create a short HTML snippet for a food delivery app's homepage using proper heading tags.

Answer:

```
<!DOCTYPE html>
<html>
<head>
  <title>Zomato - Online Food Delivery</title>
</head>
<body>

  <h1>Order Food Online with Zomato</h1>

  <h2>Delicious Food Delivered to Your Doorstep</h2>

  <h3>Explore Top Restaurants Near You</h3>

</body>
</html>
```

Heading structure:

- H1: Main headline of the page.
- H2: Supporting subheading.
- H3: Section heading related to restaurants.

This creates a clear SEO-friendly content hierarchy.

4. Use a SERP snippet preview tool to check the title and meta description, then adjust them to avoid getting cut off.

Answer: Using the recommended limits as a guide, I would use the following final versions:

Optimized Title

```
<title>Zomato - Online Food Delivery & Restaurants</title>
```

Title length: Approximately 43 characters.

Optimized Meta Description

```
<meta name="description" content="Listen to the best new music playlist on Spotify. Discover trending songs, fresh hits, and favorite tracks in one place.">
```

Meta description length: Approximately 135 characters.

These versions are kept comfortably below the suggested 60-character title and 155-character meta description limits, reducing the chance of the text being truncated in search results.
